Instructions for accessing the redesigned Pug Dog Club of America website

Launch Date and PDCA Member Accounts

On Tuesday August 19th, 2014 at 11:59pm the Pug Dog Club of America will launch the redesigned PDCA website at Pugs.org. The new PDCA website will look very different than the old PDCA website but will have all of the same content that you are used to viewing.

As with the old PDCA website, there will be a "Member's Only" section built into the new PDCA website that will give current PDCA members, in good standing, access to member specific content and features that are not available to the general public.

Existing users of the old PDCA website who have a login account will receive an email, shortly before the new PDCA website goes live, that contains their existing username and a temporary password for login to the new PDCA website. PDCA Members, who do not have an existing login account, will need to register for a new login account when the new PDCA website is up and running.

How to Login with Your Existing Username or Register for a New Account

Step 1 - New and existing users of the Pugs.org website may access the "Member's Only Section" from the "Member Login" button at the top right corner of the screen (Pictured Below)

If you have forgotten your password or did not receive your email, please use the "Lost Password" link to recover it. New users who do not have a login account registered with the old PDCA website will need to click the "Register" link and create a new "Member's Only" account. (Pictured Below)

Step 3 - After logging into your account, a message will appear that says you are logged in. (Pictured Below)
